

Odysseus and Cyclops

A long time ago, there was an island in the sea called Crete. The sun shone every day on this island. The sea that surrounded the island was very blue.

On this island, there lived Cyclops. He had one eye and he was a giant.

One day, a man called Odysseus sailed to the island with his men. They went onto the island to explore. They found a cave and looked inside.

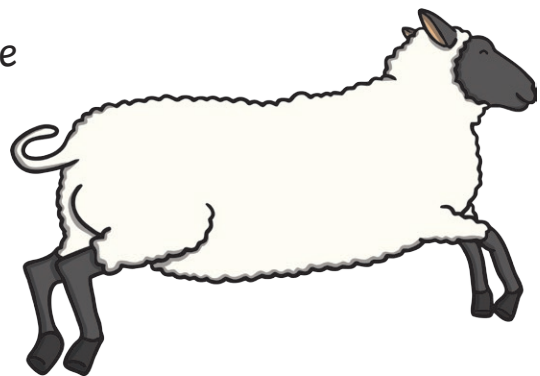

They found lambs, goats and cheese and milk. The men wanted to steal the food but Odysseus said no, so they lit a fire and waited for the owner to arrive.

Cyclops came to the cave and said, "Who are you?" He saw the men near his food and was very angry and shouted, "You will not eat my cheese or drink my milk!"

He grabbed two of the men and ate them for dinner. He then took a big rock and put it in front of the door of the cave so that the men could not get out.

Odysseus spent a long time thinking of how to get out. He saw a big stick and asked his men to make it sharp.

That night, Cyclops came back to the cave and Odysseus gave him wine. Cyclops drank it all and fell into a deep sleep.

Odysseus and his men saw their chance and put the sharp stick into Cyclops' eye. The Cyclops screamed and shouted, "I am blind! I am blind!"

Odysseus saw the animals starting to run away and told his men to tie themselves underneath the sheep so that they could also escape from the cave. Cyclops felt each animal as it left to check that nobody was riding away on its back. He never found the men hiding below.

Odysseus and his men knew that they had got far enough away from Cyclops, so they untied themselves from the sheep and ran back to the beach. They got into their boat and sailed away, leaving Cyclops alone on the island.

Questions

1. What was the name of the island?

2. What did Cyclops look like?

3. What did the men find on the island?

4. What was in the cave?

5. What did the men eat and drink?

6. What happened when Cyclops drank the wine?

7. How did the men escape?

Answers

1. What was the name of the island?
The island was called Crete.
2. What did Cyclops look like?
He was very tall and had one eye.
3. What did the men find on the island?
They found a cave.
4. What was in the cave?
There were animals and cheese and milk.
5. What did the men eat and drink?
They ate cheese and drank milk.
6. What happened when Cyclops drank the wine?
He fell fast asleep.
7. How did the men escape?
They tied themselves underneath the sheep.

Odysseus and Cyclops

A long time ago, there was an island in the sea called Crete. The sun shone everyday on this island and there it was beautiful and green, with lots of different plants and lush green grass. The sea that surrounded the island was blue and very clear.

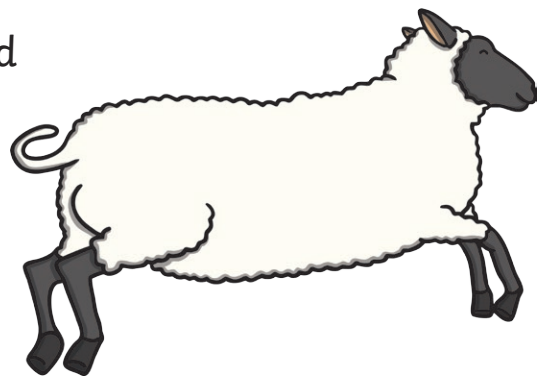

On this island, there lived Cyclops, a one-eyed creature who was as big as a house, with enormous hands and feet and a glaring round eyeball in the middle of his forehead.

One day, a man called Odysseus, who was famous all over the world for his quick mind and his cunning tricks, saw the island from his sailing boat. He decided that he would go ashore with a group of 12 brave men and see what was on the island.

When they got ashore, the men scrambled up the steep cliffs and explored the woods. They didn't see anyone and the island seemed to be deserted. However, high up on the mountain, they discovered an enormous cave.

Inside the cave, they found sheep and goats living in pens, and on the ground, they found cheese and barrels full of milk. The men wanted to steal the food, but Odysseus was a good man and wanted to wait and ask the owner if they could take it. They lit a fire and settled down to eat and drink.

As the sun was setting, they heard someone arrive and the noise of sheep. A herd of sheep came into the cave, followed by a giant who had one eye in the middle of his forehead. The men and the giant were very surprised to see each other and the giant demanded to know, "Who are you?"

"We are Greeks and are on our way home from a war in Troy," answered Odysseus. "We would like to take with us food and drink for our journey."

Cyclops was very angry and shouted, "I do not care who you are! You will not take my things!" At that, he grabbed two of the men and pushed them into his mouth, eating them quickly. He then took a huge boulder and rolled it in front of the door of the cave, trapping Odysseus and the other men inside.

Odysseus was a wise man and he sat down to think about what could be done to escape, while the rest of the men slept through the night. As morning came, he knew what he had to do. Cyclops had left a huge stick in the cave and Odysseus ordered his men to sharpen the end of it so that it made a point. Then, they waited for Cyclops to come home.

When Cyclops arrived at the cave, Odysseus said to him, "Let us not be enemies, Cyclops my friend. Come and share my wine with me and let us talk."

Cyclops had never tasted wine, but took a long drink and found that he really liked it. Odysseus and Cyclops chatted throughout the evening and, before he knew it, Cyclops had finished all of the wine and fell into a deep, deep sleep.

Odysseus saw his chance and ordered his men to plunge the sharpened stick into Cyclops' eye. Cyclops screamed and shouted, "I am blind, I am blind!" and desperately tried to grab the men.

Odysseus told his men that the only way to escape Cyclops' grasp was to tie themselves underneath the sheep, who were trying to escape from the cave in all the commotion. As each sheep went out, Cyclops carefully felt it to check that a man was not riding on its back.

The last animal to leave the cave was the old ram with curly horns. Odysseus was clinging to its underside. Cyclops stroked the ram and said, "I have been blinded, but I shall have my revenge. I shall find those men tonight hiding in the corner of the cave, and I shall eat them all for dinner."

Odysseus and his men were now out of Cyclops' reach, so they untied themselves from the sheep and ran back to the beach. They got into their boat and were able to sail away to safety, leaving Cyclops alone on the island.

Questions

1. What was the name of the island?

2. What did Cyclops look like?

3. Who was Odysseus?

4. What did Odysseus and his men do when they got onto the island?

5. What was inside the cave?

6. What did the men do when they were in the cave?

7. How did Cyclops feel when he saw Odysseus and the men?

8. What two things did Cyclops do when he saw the men?

9. What did Odysseus ask the men to do with the stick?

10. What happened to Cyclops when he had drunk the wine?

11. How did the men escape from the cave?

1. Answers
2. What was the name of the island?
The island was called Crete.
3. What did Cyclops look like?
He was a one-eyed creature who was as big as a house, with enormous hands and feet.
4. Who was Odysseus?
He was a man who was famous all over the world for his quick mind and his cunning tricks.
5. What did Odysseus and his men do when they got onto the island?
They scrambled up the steep cliffs and explored the woods.
6. What was inside the cave?
Inside the cave, they found lambs and goat kids living in pens, and on the ground, they found cheese and barrels full of milk.
7. What did the men do when they were in the cave?
The men lit a fire and settled down to eat and drink.
8. How did Cyclops feel when he saw Odysseus and the men?
Cyclops was very angry and shouted at Odysseus and the men.
9. What two things did Cyclops do when he saw the men?
He grabbed two of the men and pushed them into his mouth, eating them for dinner. He then took a huge boulder and rolled it in front of the door of the cave, trapping Odysseus and the other men inside.
10. What did Odysseus ask the men to do with the stick?
Odysseus ordered his men to sharpen the end of it so that it made a point. He then ordered them to stick it into Cyclops' eye.
11. What happened to Cyclops when he had drunk the wine?
He fell into a deep sleep.
12. How did the men escape from the cave?
They tied themselves to the bottom of sheep.